Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication

The Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication offers work for the bachelor of arts in advertising, and the bachelor of science degree in journalism and mass communication. The unit, founded in 1905, has been continuously accredited every six years since 1948 by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications and was last reaccredited in 2010. Accreditation is based on the principle that students need a broad-based, liberal arts education, as well as a solid core of courses within the discipline.

Undergraduate Study

Students who complete degrees in advertising or journalism and mass communication are expected to develop competencies in 12 key areas:

- History/Role of professionals and institutions: Demonstrate an understanding of the history and role of professionals and institutions in shaping communications;
- First Amendment/Law: Understand and apply the principles and laws of freedom of speech and press, including the right to dissent, to monitor and criticize power, and to assemble and petition for redress of grievances;
- Theory: Understand concepts and apply theories in the use and presentation of images and information;
- Research and evaluation: Conduct research and evaluate information by methods appropriate to the communications professions in which they work;
- Diversity: Demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of groups in a global society in relationship to communications;
- Ethics: Demonstrate an understanding of professional ethical principles and work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy, fairness and diversity;
- Critical thinking: Think critically, creatively and independently;
- Writing: Write correctly and clearly in forms and styles appropriate for the communications professions, audiences and purposes they serve;
- Visual Communication: Conceptualize, prepare or select appropriate methods to convey information in visual form, whether as a complement or supplement to words;
- Numeracy: Apply basic numerical and statistical concepts;
- Critical Evaluation/Editing: Critically evaluate their own work and that of others for accuracy and fairness, clarity, appropriate style and grammatical correctness;
- Tools and technology: Apply tools and technologies appropriate for the communication profession in which they work.

To become an advertising or journalism and mass communication major, the student must have completed the pre-major core requirements (See majors). Until these courses are successfully completed, advertising and journalism and mass communication students are designated as pre-majors.

Communication Proficiency Requirement

All majors in the School must earn a grade of C or better in ENGL 150 Critical Thinking and Communication (or be exempt) and ENGL 250 Written, Oral, Visual, and Electronic Composition (or ENGL 250H Written, Oral, Visual, and Electronic Composition: Honors). These additional requirements apply:

- Advertising majors must earn a C+ or better in:
  - JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media 3
  - JL MC 110 Orientation to Journalism and Communication 3
  - JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media (C+ or better) 3
  - ADVRT 230 Advertising Principles 3
  - ADVRT 334 Advertising Creativity (C+ or better in ADVRT 334 or ADVRT 336) 3
  - or ADVRT 336 Advertising Account Management 3
  - ADVRT 434 Advertising Campaigns 3
  - ADVRT 436 Advertising Portfolio Practicum 3

- Journalism and mass communication majors must earn a C+ or better in:
  - JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media 3
  - JL MC 202 Intermediate Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media 3
  - JL MC 206 Reporting and Writing for the Electronic Media 3
  - JL MC 321 Public Relations Writing 3

The Advertising Major

The advertising major prepares students for careers in business and industry or for graduate education. Students majoring in advertising find career opportunities in professions requiring applied communication expertise. Graduates are qualified for positions in the creative and account sides of advertising within businesses, agencies and media.

To become an advertising major, a student must successfully complete:

- JL MC 101 Mass Media and Society 3
- JL MC 110 Orientation to Journalism and Communication 1
- JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media (C+ or better) 3
- ADVRT 230 Advertising Principles 3

Until these courses are successfully completed, advertising students are designated as pre-majors. To receive a bachelor of arts degree in advertising, a student must earn at least 120 credits. A minimum of 80 credits must come from courses other than ADVRT or JL MC. At least 65 of these credits must come from the liberal arts and sciences. Overall, at least 45 credits must be from 300-level courses or above. Advertising majors are required to take:

- MKT 340 Principles of Marketing 3
- SP CM 212 Fundamentals of Public Speaking 3
- STAT 101 Principles of Statistics (or another approved statistics course) 4

The degree requirements allow for a minimum of 33 and a maximum of 40 credits to be taken in ADVRT and JL MC. These include:

- JL MC 101 Mass Media and Society 3
- JL MC 110 Orientation to Journalism and Communication 1
- JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media (C+ or better) 3
- ADVRT 230 Advertising Principles 3
- ADVRT 301 Research and Strategic Planning for Advertising and Public Relations 3
- ADVRT 334 Advertising Creativity (C+ or better in ADVRT 334 or ADVRT 336) 3
- ADVRT 336 Advertising Account Management 3
- ADVRT 434 Advertising Campaigns 3
- ADVRT 436 Advertising Portfolio Practicum 3
- JL MC 460 Law of Mass Communication 3
- JL MC 499 Professional Media Internship 3

Additional recommended courses and requirements for the advertising major are available from the Greenlee School.

The School requires a Designated Area of Concentration (DAC) made up of 21 credits with at least 12 credits from the 300-level or above. All courses for the DAC must be taken outside of ADVRT and JL MC. The DAC is a secondary area of expertise made up of courses selected and designed by the student, with adviser approval. A second major may substitute for the DAC.

Advertising majors may not pursue a second major or minor in journalism and mass communication.

The Journalism and Mass Communication Major

The journalism and mass communication major prepares students for careers that involve all aspects of news and information. Emphasis is placed on generating ideas, organizing, writing, editing and presenting information for various media platforms and audiences. Students work with advisers to develop a program of study that prepares them for work in communication-specific areas including broadcast media, magazines and/or newspapers, public relations/public information, science communication or visual communication and online/multimedia.

To become a journalism and mass communication major, a student must successfully complete:

- JL MC 101 Mass Media and Society 3
- JL MC 110 Orientation to Journalism and Communication 1
- JL MC 201 Reporting and Writing for the Mass Media (with a C+ or better) 3

Until these courses are successfully completed, journalism and mass communication students are designated as pre-majors. To receive a bachelor of...
Graduate Study

The Greenlee School of Journalism and Communication offers work for a master of science degree in journalism and mass communication.

Majors plan a program of study in one of two tracks:

I. Communication as theory and research -- The School offers advanced academic preparation in communication theory and research leading to the master of science degree. Graduate work prepares students to use and contribute to research and scholarship in the field of communication. The degree requires a thesis or creative component based on original research, which must be defended successfully before a committee at the end of the program. Areas of research emphasis include: science and risk communication, media performance, media effects, advertising, public relations, political communication, communication technology, law and ethics, international communication, visual communication and emerging media.

II. Professional and Strategic Communication -- The School offers advanced professional study in journalism and mass communication leading to the master of science degree. Graduate work prepares students for professional careers in a variety of mass communication fields. Students with limited training or experience in journalism and mass communication may include skills courses in their programs, but the credits for those courses will not count toward the graduate degree. The degree requires either a creative component or thesis.

All students must complete four core courses:
